

From Eric
Lundgren <ecanetwork@gmail.com>
To bob wolff <rjw@mindspring.com>
Sent 04/10/12 06:54:39 PM
Subject Re: Bob: Update.. Thanks.
Bob,

Thank you for for filling your promise and getting these liquidated.

We will not have to sell anymore at 1.75 Ea because we are making the newer versions right? The market is still plenty high for SP3 and W7 Correct?

What is the best breakdown for such product?

% will want W7 32?
% will want w7 64?
% will want wxp sp3.?

As for CDs shipped, I'll pay for local shipping on my 1% to friends. However, since it is less than 1% of what is shipped to you to sell, you are packing as a favor to me and I thank you sir..

Now moving on; I just traveled 6 hours by train to visit the molding factory for our product.. I had to sit next to a fat woman which smelt like rotten rice and get drunk with a bunch of country bumpkin factory owners just to get our mission done over here.. I think I spent about 214 USD on this side for the molds etc and a down payment of 2,500 USD 30%) which is for soley supporting our business.. And product to come...

In 10 days I will receive the mold for SP3 from the northern city of Guanxi and then I will have to go back up with your newest sample when it arrives hence another 2 days in travel.. : )

But once we have these two molds made, we will be only ones capable of factory grade production! : )

This will ensure a steady income for the next year to come! : )

I solute you Bob! : ) Good work!

--
Best Regards,

Eric Lundgren
CEO
Source Captain Inc.
Eric@SourceCaptain.com